Raise 2026 EBITDA to $22.80b on Higher Margins; Trim Broadband Losses to 525k, but Still Up Y/Y

We are encouraged by Charter's better 4Q EBITDA growth despite hurricane-related credits and better subscriber trends in video and broadband. However, we expect ramping fiber builds and steady FWA competition to drive higher total broadband losses in 2026 despite contributions from rural/RDOF, network evolution, convergence take-rates, and increased emphasis on the customer experience. We now forecast total broadband net losses of 525k in 2026 (vs. -600k prior and -403k in 2025) as new connect volumes remain challenged. Following better 4Q25 EBITDA and expectations for EBITDA growth, we raise 2026 EBITDA to $22.80b (+0.4% y/y) on higher margins (41.7% vs. 41.5% in 2025) reflecting management's cost focus and operational improvements. However, we do not expect Charter to grow EBITDA in 2026 excluding the benefit of political advertising. While we raise 2026 EBITDA and reduce cash taxes following updated guidance of $500-800m for the year, we lower 2026 FCF to $5.18b on higher capex of $11.40b (in line with updated guidance). We are not surprised by management's decision to lower its leverage target to the "low end of a new 3.5x to 3.75x range" and believe this move will enable Charter to continue returning capital to shareholders while de-risking its cost of capital.

- Trim 2026 total BB net losses 525k, but expect higher losses y/y due to increased competition and declining share of connects. While CHTR CEO Chris Winfrey expects an "improved trajectory" in BB subscribers in 2026 due to investments over the last several years (RDOF + network evolution), we continue to model accelerating BB losses y/y to 525k (vs. -600k prior and -403k in 2025) due to the company's declining share of gross adds as FWA and fiber take share as the macro remains challenging. We modestly raise 1Q26 total BB net losses to 145k to reflect higher churn following CHTR's removal of the $5 autopay discount in mid-January. Following lighter 4Q mobile sub growth due to increased promo intensity from competitors (which we expect to continue), we lower 2026 mobile net adds to 1.75m despite the anticipated launch of CHTR's business MVNO with T-Mobile "in the next six months".
- Reduce 2026 video net losses to 275k as Seamless Entertainment benefits persist. Following the first quarter of video subscriber growth since 3Q20 benefitting from the rollout of Seamless Entertainment and new pricing/packaging, which drove lower churn and higher connects/upgrades to fully featured video packages, we trim 2026 video net losses to 275k (from 450k prior and 278k in 2025). While we expect new pricing/packaging and Seamless Entertainment benefits to continue in 2026, we expect Charter to see somewhat higher churn in 1Q26, and model net losses of 60k following mid-January video service ($3-10 across packages) and broadcast fee (~$3) increases.
- 2026 revenue unchanged at $54.73b. Our 2026 consolidated revenue is unchanged at $54.73b (-0.1% y/y) reflecting Residential revenue of $42.03b (-1.3% y/y) and Commercial revenue of $7.34b (+0.4% y/y). We raise video revenue ~1% to $12.75b on better subs despite lower ARPU (-5% y/y) due to higher streaming app allocation despite the mid-January service level and broadcast fee increases. We reduce Internet revenue 0.6% to $23.76b (flat y/y) on lower ARPU despite the removal of the $5 autopay discount. Updated 2026 Internet ARPU is now $72.33 (+1.7% y/y) vs. expectations for slower growth this year given pricing/packaging dilution. Updated mobile revenue goes to $4.29b (0.3% lower) on flow through of lower subs despite slightly higher ARPU reflecting higher adoption of Unlimited Plus and the $10/month price increase on single lines which went into effect in January.

- Raise 2026 EBITDA to $22.80b (+0.4% y/y) on higher margins. On the call, CFO Fischer noted that CHTR was planning for slight EBITDA growth in 2026 (excluding transition costs) with a "more challenged" first half due to tougher comps with 2H26 benefitting from political advertising. However, Fischer cautioned that it is unclear if Charter can grow EBITDA in 2026 when excluding the benefit of political advertising. While declining BB subs will pose a headwind to 2026 EBITDA, Fischer expects contributions from positive BB ARPU growth, mobile growth, operational efficiencies and expense management to fuel EBITDA growth for the year. Accordingly, we raise 2026 EBITDA to $22.80b (+0.4% y/y) on increased margins of 41.7% (+20bps y/y). Increased margins are mainly driven by lower video programming costs, with CFO Fischer guiding to low-single digit programming cost per sub growth y/y (vs. our updated +2.9% y/y) excluding streaming app allocation (up to ~$1b). CFO Fischer also expects cost to service customers to be "slightly down" y/y (vs. our largely unchanged $8.25b or -1% y/y) with sales and marketing growth expected to be "meaningfully slower" y/y (JPMe of +2.2% y/y vs. +5.3% in 2025).
- Lower 2026 FCF to $5.18b and raise 2026 capex to $11.40b following updated guidance. Charter raised 2026 capex guidance to $11.40b (vs. $10.5-11.0b prior) and updated its 2027-2029 capex outlook to include $230m of BEAD spend (mostly in 2027-2029). Management now expects capital spend of $9.5b in 2027 and $7.5-8.0b in 2028 and 2029. Accordingly, we raise 2026 and 2027 capex to $11.40b and $9.55bm (from $10.74b/$9.24b). We now forecast 2028/2029 capex of $8.25b/$8.25b (largely unchanged). Our updated 2026 FCF goes to $5.18b (down from $5.36b) on higher capex despite higher EBITDA and lower cash taxes following updated guidance of $500-800m. 2026 stock buybacks are unchanged at $6.0b, which implies net leverage of 4.17x exiting the year. On the call, management announced that it will lower its post-Cox leverage target to 3.50-3.75x, which it intends to achieve within three years following close. The company still expects "significant ongoing capital returns to shareholders" despite the deleveraging.

J.P. Morgan ratings or designations: OW = Overweight, N= Neutral, UW = Underweight, NR = Not Rated

Explanation of Equity Research Ratings, Designations and Analyst(s) Coverage Universe:
J.P. Morgan uses the following rating system: Overweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will outperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe); Neutral (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will perform in line with the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe); and Underweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will underperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe. NR is Not Rated. In this case, J.P. Morgan has removed the rating and, if applicable, the price target, for this stock because of either a lack of a sufficient fundamental basis or for legal, regulatory or policy reasons. The previous rating and, if applicable, the price target, no longer should be relied upon. An NR designation is not a recommendation or a rating. Some stocks under coverage have a rating but no price target; in these cases, we expect the stock will outperform/perform in line/underperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe of the relevant duration of the region. In our Asia (ex-Australia and ex-India) and U.K. small- and mid-cap Equity Research, each stock's expected total return is compared to the expected total return of a benchmark country market index, not to those Research Analysts' coverage universe. If it does not appear in the Important Disclosures section of this report, the certifying Research Analyst's coverage universe can be found on J.P. Morgan's Research website, https://www.jpmorganmarkets.com.
